

CS3CN3 / SE4C03
Computer Networks & Security
Winter 2011

- Instructor: Michael Soltys
Office: ITB-214, Ext: 27769
Email: soltys@mcmaster.ca
Office hours: Thursdays 12:30–14:30
- TAs: Jason Jaskolka and Can Wang
- Lectures: Mo, We, Th 10:30-11:20 in HSC/1A6
- Web Page: <http://www.cas.mcmaster.ca/~soltys/cs3cn3-w11>
- Text Book: Network Security: Private Communication in a Public World (2nd Edition), 2002, Published by Prentice Hall
- Course Description: The calendar description is as follows: Physical networks, TCP/IP protocols, switching methods, network layering and components, network services. Information security, computer and network security threats, defense mechanisms, encryption. We are going to concentrate on the network security aspects, especially on cryptography; a mixture of theory and programming assignments in Python.
- Marking Scheme: 6 tests, worth 5% each, written every other Monday, 3 programming assignments worth 10% each, and a final exam, worth 40%. No aids will be allowed for the tests and the final exam. Missed work will be given a mark of zero, unless proper justification is provided. The instructor reserves the right to conduct a missed midterm orally. You will learn Python on your own.
- Academic Integrity: Academic dishonesty consists of misrepresentation by deception or by other fraudulent means and can result in serious consequences, e.g., the grade of zero on an assignment, loss of credit with a notation on the transcript (notation reads: “Grade of F assigned for academic dishonesty”), and/or suspension or expulsion from the university. It is your responsibility to understand what constitutes academic dishonesty. For information on the various kinds of academic dishonesty please refer to the Academic Integrity Policy, specifically Appendix 3, located at http://www.mcmaster.ca/senate/academic/ac_integrity.htm
The following illustrates only three forms of academic dishonesty: 1. Plagiarism, e.g. the submission of work that is not one’s own or for which other credit has been obtained. 2. Improper collaboration in group work. 3. Copying or using unauthorized aids in tests and examinations.
- Please Note: The instructor and university reserve the right to modify elements of the course during the term. The university may change the dates and deadlines for any or all courses in extreme circumstances. If either type of modification becomes necessary, reasonable notice and communication with the students will be given with explanation and the opportunity to comment on changes. It is the responsibility of the student to check their McMaster email and course websites weekly during the term and to note any changes.
